THE SENTINEL.

Tuesday, January 22, 1867.

FROM WASHINGTON.

The Purposes of the Radicals—The Impeachment Project—Congress and the President—The Judiciary Committee—Appointments and Removals—The "Anarchy Bill"—The Bankrupt Bill.

WASHINGTON, January 19, 1867.

If indications were wanting of the purpose of Radical leaders to promote the proposed impeachment of the President, we have them in the change of tone on the subject on the part of some influential public journals. The New York Herald instinctively discovers and promptly follows the drift of public opinion upon political and financial questions. It threw cold water, till recently, upon the impeachment project, but has discovered and announced the fact that the President will be impeached and removed.—Moreover, it justifies the proceeding, and insists that it will create no commotion in the money market, and "not turn the country from the even tenor of its way."

But if all the commercial journals in the country were to oppose impeachment, or any other leading measure, now demanded by the Radical rulers, it would be of no avail. I am satisfied that it has been determined upon by some dozen or two leaders in Congress, and that they have ample power to accomplish it.—The rank and file of Radicalism neither know nor care what measures be adopted, if the object of perpetuating the rule of the party be effected. The leaders have ascertained that Congress is no match for the President and the Supreme Court combined, and that the President therefore, be removed.

The Judiciary Committee will prepare ex parte evidence enough for the purpose of sustaining the articles of impeachment, which they will report. Before March, the mass of the Radical party will be brought up to the support of the measure, even if they are at all behind hand now. The removal of the President may be reckoned upon as a certainty, and it would appear by the rise in gold, that Wall street so understands it. We shall soon find another indication of the apprehended event, in the return of United States securities from abroad.

The Senate has passed the bill regulating appointments and removals—that is, depriving the President of his power to appoint and remove officers. By this and other measures his power will be so far contracted that he will be disabled from resisting the usurpations of Congress. He will not be able to surround himself with political and personal friends, with the exception of his Cabinet. It was proposed also to deprive him of the power of removing his Cabinet Ministers, and this may be done in a separate bill. It will be done in case of any fear of the removal of Stanton. Senator Cowan prevented the immediate adoption of the restriction, by denying the rumor that he had been offered the War Department.

With much interest we look to the result of the motion which Mr. Bingham, of Ohio, will make to commit Stevens' "anarchy bill" to the Committee on Reconstruction. Mr. Stevens will not let it rest there, because the committee will probably insist, as Mr. Bingham does, upon holding on upon the Constitutional amendment, declaring it as a part of the Constitution when it shall be adopted by three-fourths of the represented States. This would preclude the legislation in regard to the ten Southern States which the Stevens bill proposed.

Mr. Bingham's speech, as an argument against the Stevens project to disfranchise a million of white voters in the South, is very powerful, and has produced much effect.

The bankrupt bill is now under consideration in the Senate. Its friends think that they will be able to pass it. It is unfortunately reported with an amendment striking out the provision which the House tenaciously required, that the homestead laws of the States respectively shall not be interfered with. If the Senate agree to the amendment, and insist upon it, the bill must fail.—Cor. Richmond Examiner.

The Southern Relief Association.

So many and such well authenticated accounts have reached the North of the terrible destitution now prevailing throughout a wide belt of the lately rebellious States, that a vigorous movement has been set on foot by a number of ladies in this city to organize a system for its prompt and effective relief.

No political color whatever is to be given to this movement. It will have but one object, the saving of them that are ready to perish, and it will be administered in but one spirit, the spirit of that charity which blesses both them who receive and them who give.

The ladies are encouraged in their good work by Mayor Hoffman, by the Catholic Archbishop of New York, by Bishop Potter, by Dr. Tyng, and by a number of other eminent laymen and clergymen. They have taken a central office at No. 14 Bond street, where supplies of dry goods, clothing, &c., may be daily sent from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M. Messrs. Harris, Gaines & Co., 15 Whithall street, will receive for them any more weighty contributions, and Commodore Garrison has generously offered to furnish a steamer for conveying to the South the help which it must surely be impossible that New York will be slow or niggard in extending to hundreds of thousands of women and children dying within our own borders for lack of the absolute necessaries of life.—N. Y. World.

The Raleigh Standard.

We refer our readers to an article which we copy from the Sentinel, showing how the Senior Editor of the Standard would stand in reference to the oath prepared by himself for his own enfranchisement, should that oath become a law by Congress. By his own writings, he will be found as being even behind that time by several months—or if you please, ahead of the limit when it is supposed there were repentant rebels in the Southern Confederacy. Unfortunate man; it is bad that he has so treacherous a memory. But then, the programme of the radicals is such now, that if territorialized, even the X. P. G. cannot take a part in the work of restoration, as no one who signed the ordinance of secession is to be trusted. That gets him, and "settles his hash," for a time and a time and a half. Read the article, and see to what ends some people will come at last.—Goldsboro' News

THE SENTINEL.

WM. E. PELL,
SEATON GALES. } Editors.

Tuesday Evening, Jan. 22, 1867.

The Legislature.

This body convened to day, after a recess of a month. The intercourse of the members with the people, will have served to fix in their minds, what is most desirable and necessary in legislation. The feeling is no doubt general, that the body should direct its attention closely to what is necessary, and that no time will be wasted in speculative and useless action.

The Standard, upon the threshold, informs the Legislature that it has no use for so disloyal a body. Such an intimation was wholly unnecessary. The Legislature, at its last session, very plainly indicated, it had no use for the Standard or its editor—having no confidence either in its loyalty, its patriotism or its fidelity to its own people. There will certainly be no love lost between the two.

There is, however, a good deal of important business to be transacted. The fact that the Standard and its new friends, are bent upon undermining the foundations of the State, uprooting and destroying all that our people regard as valuable and hopeful in social or political life, by no means releases our legislators from the obligation to do what they can to promote the welfare of the people of the State. They should leave nothing undone that is right and necessary in itself, because men maddened with partizan rage stand ready to pull it down.

The proper adjustment of the Revenue bill, the necessary action to protect the credit of the State, the establishment of a penitentiary, giving such encouragement to public schools and providing, as far as possible, for the relief of the people as legislative aid can affect it, are all important subjects which require attention. All these, we hope, will be disposed of wisely and promptly for the good of the State.

Escape of Prisoners.

The Standard of to day publishes the following:

Absconded from the Wake Work-house on the 20th. inst., the following prisoners:

Kinchen Dillard, 5 feet, 5 inches high, dark copper color negro—scars on back; John Evins 5 feet, 8 inches, dark mulatto, aged 30 years; Wiley Nelson, bright color, weight 160 lbs. aged 30 years, quick spoken—scars on back; Berry Kelly, medium size, dark colored negro; Atlas George, very bright negro, of small stature.

Lee Jasper, a free man of color, also absconded on the 11th. of December, 1866.

They escaped through a hole in the floor of the room in which they were confined.

We know not what has been the experience of other Counties in the establishment of work-houses, but the above will likely be the experience of most of them. The cost of these establishments to the several Counties, we predict will be greater than anticipated, and would build four first-class penitentiaries in the State. They cannot be made self-sustaining, and as a means of discipline they will be worthless. It strikes us, that the evidence is accumulating that the State should adopt at once the penitentiary system, both as a matter of economy, and and as more fully meeting the demands of the age.

"The Parliament that beheaded the first Charles was not more determined in its purpose than the present Congress. The next Congress will be more radical and more determined than the present one. It will do its work with a hand of iron; at all hazards and to the last extremity; and it will be sustained by every patriot and true man in the whole country."—Standard.

Such is the language which this enemy of North Carolina and his own native people indulges, in view of the ruin which he hopes will be brought down upon his country. He gloats upon, and dances with glee at, the smoldering wrath which he thinks is treasured up for his people. "Congress will be more radical"—"it will do its work with a hand of iron,"—"and every patriot and true man" will sustain it!—That is, it will impeach President Johnson and hurl him from his position—it will take possession of all the powers of the government, legislative, executive and judicial—will set the Constitution at defiance—will reduce the Southern States to provinces, to be governed by military rule,—disfranchise the whites—enfranchise the blacks, and rule them as they list. And Holden will dance for very joy when this is done.—Nothing that radical vengeance can invent will be too much for him!

The New York Herald, of the 19th, in the course of a long article advocating the application of the most stringent measures to the Southern States, admits that they are "tired and disgusted" with rebellion and will never essay another. It is just such as the Herald, who, while they profess to believe that the South is helpless and unable and indisposed to retort their insults, still pretend that it is necessary to enlarge the powers of the government, to tear the Constitution into shreds, and raise the negro to a position of equality with themselves, to keep them in order and prevent them from making another attempt to establish their independence. They either do not believe that the South is as desolate and weak as they pretend, or they are not sincere in their demands for guarantees for the future peace. Taking either horn of the dilemma, they are utterly unworthy of public confidence.

The Standard says that it will not "encumber its columns" with the proceedings of our "disloyal Legislature." We presume that Committees will be appointed, in the two Houses, to draft resolutions expressive of their concern at this announcement. By the way, as the Standard, by the exclusion of legislative proceedings, will have ample space at command, will it not publish that "two hours" speech in the African Church, and Holden's letter to the Albany Evening Journal, in which he expresses apprehension lest the "rebels" might elect a negro to Congress? Both ought, by all means, to appear in the same paper.

Holden, after March 4, 1864.

"We dared not (in 1864) openly proclaim our preferences, or specifically detail our purposes. We could only cry "give us PEACE!"—Standard, Jan. 22, 1867.

We append a few more of Holden's "preferences," after the 4th of March, 1864, which strike us as being tolerably "openly" proclaimed:

"IF WE LIVED IN THE UNITED STATES, we would support and encourage such PATRIOTS as Vallandigham and Pierce, and we would do all we could to rescue the Federal Constitution from the grasp of those who would destroy it and the liberties of the people of that section."—Standard. Aug. 3, 1864.

"We publish, to-day, a number of extracts from the Standard of former dates, showing our position in relation to secession and disunion. We resisted secession with all our strength up to the proclamation of Lincoln; and SINCE THAT TIME we have been as true to the new government as we were to the old. We have supported the war, paid our taxes cheerfully, and done all that we could to encourage our soldiers and people to perform their duty."—Standard June 15*th.* 1864.

"The Richmond Sentinel, of Saturday contains an article devoted to the Standard, from which we make the following extract:

"In a very recent number, it (the Standard) has declared for peace on a lower basis than we are contending for; that is, it is in favor of reunion with our enemies which implies submission to them." There is not one word of truth in the above. We are not in favor of REUNION WITH OUR ENEMIES or of submission to them."—Standard May 18, 1864.

"We have neither encouraged desertion, nor aided the enemy, nor accused the government nor advised its overthrow, nor attempted to instal a secret conspirator, or any one else, into office among the soldiers, for our own end.—There is no shadow of foundation for these charges in the Confederate."—Standard July 20, 1864.

"The news from the battles in Virginia is not discouraging. Gen. Lee, with his glorious troops, still maintains his ground, and has made awful havoc with the enemy. Our losses, too, must be heavy. In the language of Gen. Lee, our only hope is in the heroic valor of this Army and the blessing of Almighty God."—Standard, May 25, 1864.

"Who would be free themselves must strike the blow." Now is the time for the chivalry, the indomitable courage, the desperate valor of the States referred to to manifest themselves, (meaning Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina.) If Sherman should succeed in permanently occupying Georgia, his line from Nashville, through that State, will be a second Mississippi river, effectually cutting off all communication between Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia and Richmond, and will throw our armies in Virginia on the States of North and South Carolina for nearly all their supplies of corn, forage and bacon. It is rumored that Gen. Beauregard has been ordered to Georgia. Much may be expected from his energy and his great ability as a General. Let us hope, if the rumor be true, that Beauregard will be able to rally the people of the States referred to, and with their aid and his veteran troops turn the tide of victory in OUR favor.—Standard, Sept. 14, 1864.

Speaking of Hon. W. A. Graham, in June, 1864, the Standard said:

"The progress of this revolution has developed no nobler Roman than the gentleman whose name heads this article. Modest and unassuming, but ever firm and decided, he is never silent when the rights and liberties of the citizen are in danger."—Standard, June 23, 1864.

Pretty "open" preferences, national and personal!

Again, with all solemnity, we ask:

Can Holden take the Stevens or the Pool-Holden test-oath?

And, again, we pause for a reply!

The New York Herald publishes a letter from Richmond, dated Jan. 17, which, among other things, contains the following:—

"Information from North Carolina reveals the existence in that State of a secret organization in Union County. It is intimated that it is revolutionary in character. Each member is sworn to secrecy before he is introduced and made acquainted with the secrets. The organization will be established in every county, and may possibly result in serious trouble among the people."

The Herald's correspondent is correct in his information. He doubtless refers to the "secret organization" known as Red Strings, Heroes of America, Loyal Leagues, &c., which are unquestionably "revolutionary in their character." They are designed to subvert the Constitution and to dissolve the Union.

N. C. Mutual Fire Insurance Company.—At a meeting of the Board of Directors of this Institution held at the office of the Company, to-day, it was resolved to collect an assessment of 15 per cent. upon the premium notes of the Company, in order to an immediate payment of the debts of the Company and closing of the Institution. T. H. Selby, Esq., was re-elected President, and K. P. Battle, Esq., Attorney.—Members of this Company should bear in mind that they are liable for the losses still occurring, so long as they refuse to pay the assessment and hold on to their policies. The quickest way to get rid of the responsibility, is for each member to pay the assessment and surrender his policy.

The Wilmington Journal, alluding to the purpose of Judge Manly, heretofore announced, to resign the Speakership of the Senate, during the present session, recommends Col. E. D. Hall as his successor, and says that gentleman a high and merited compliment.

"The colored barbers at the Ebbitt House could tell Mr. Hanes more about the probabilities of the future, than those with whom he associates in Washington."—Standard, Jan. 22.

Holden doubtless obtained his "probabilities" from this source. They are highly "colored."

David S. Ellington, Esq., of Rockingham county, has been admitted to the practice of the law in the County Courts by the Supreme Court.

Wendell Phillips said, in a speech at Albany, that if Southern representatives were admitted to Congress, they would distribute Confederate paper freely to secure an assumption of the Confederate debt, and that he knew one Massachusetts representative who could not resist such an argument for six hours.

HABEAS CORPUS.

In the matter of William H. Hughes.
Graham and Harris for Petitioner.
Bragg contra.
Moore for Sheriff of Granville.

Pearson C. J.—

At June Term 1866, upon the request of Gov. Worth, the Judges of this Court certified to him an opinion in these words:

Raleigh, June 21st. 1866.

His Excellency Gov. Worth:—In reply to your communication of the 20th. inst., I have the honor to say, the Judges concur in the opinion that the word, "Crime," in the act of Congress to which you refer, embraces all offences against the public, of an aggravated or infamous character, as contra-distinguished from trivial offences to which the milder term "misdemeanor" is applied. The dividing line is not plainly marked in the books, and to convey the meaning, we must resort to instances. An assault with intent to commit felony, a conspiracy, cheating with false tokens, are "crimes."

An ordinary assault and battery, retailing without license, are misdemeanors.

In determining what is a crime, it is proper to be governed by the laws of the State in which the offence is alleged to have been committed.

The grade of offence may be considered as marked by the punishment; if it be infamous or degrading, as the jail or penitentiary, the offence is a crime, and properly associated with 'treason' and "felony;" if the punishment be only a fine the offence is a misdemeanor, and is excluded from the operation of the act of Congress, by the words "treason and felony." "Noscitur a sociis."

(Signed) R. M. PEARSON,
Chief Justice S. C.

This opinion covers almost the whole ground. It was properly conceded on the argument by Mr. Bragg, that in regard to points of law the Court has power, as a co-ordinate Branch of the government, to review and control the action of the Governor under a writ of Habeas Corpus.—On the other hand it was conceded by Mr. Graham, that, in regard to any other matter within the discretion of the Governor, the Court had no right to interfere.

It was urged by Mr. Graham, 1st. that cheating by false pretence, as distinguished from false token, was not a crime at Common Law, and was made a crime by statute in the State of New York after the adoption of the Constitution of the United States, and consequently is not embraced by the word "crime" as used in that instrument.

It may be, that in the construction of a treaty between independent nations, where a particular offense is specified, "forgery" for instance, as in Windsor's case, cited in Wheaton, Int. Law 117, it was well decided that what was or was not "forgery" depended on the state of the Law at the date of the treaty, and that a statute passed afterwards making "a false entry, by a clerk in Bank," forgery, was not embraced by the treaty. Ours is a different case. We are not putting a construction upon a treaty between independent nations; we are putting a construction upon a Constitution "adopted by the people of the United States in order to form a more perfect Union, establish justice, &c." In this instrument we find a provision that any person charged with treason, felony or other crime, shall be delivered up, &c. The words are general; no specific offence, as forgery, is named, and, in the very nature of things, this being a part of the fundamental law of the United States, has reference to such changes in the Criminal Law, that might thereafter be made in any State of the Union; so the position, that a rule of construction which may have been properly applied to a treaty, is applicable to the Constitution of the United States, is untenable. The clause under consideration should be construed, in connection with the clause immediately preceding, "the citizens of each State shall be entitled to all the privileges and immunities of citizens in the several States," and, as by the one, a citizen of North Carolina going to the State of New York is entitled to all the privileges of a citizen of that State, it is plainly the meaning of the other, to subject him to punishment for violating its Criminal Law, as if he was a citizen of that State, and to take away all chance of dodging behind State lines. It is clear that the facts set out by the indictment in this case constitute a crime according to the statute of New York, as construed by the Courts of that State.

2nd. It was urged in the second place, that as the prisoner had been heretofore delivered up by Gov. Worth, and was allowed to leave the State of New York, upon entering into a recognizance for his appearance, the Governor had no power to order his arrest a second time; either on the ground, that his power having been once exhausted, had spent its force, or on the ground, that a forfeiture of the recognizance was an atonement for the offense; neither of these positions can be maintained. It may be, that had the prisoner been discharged for want of prosecution, it would be in the discretion of the Governor, to refuse to order his arrest a second time; but where a recognizance is taken and the prisoner fails to appear, the power of the Governor to order a second arrest cannot be questioned; the suggestion that a forfeited recognizance is to be treated as an atonement for the offense, does not admit of discussion.

It follows that the prisoner must be remanded, provided Jonathan Worth is rightfully filling the office of Governor of the State of North Carolina. That point was not made on the argument, but as the objection has been gravely urged elsewhere, a decent regard for public opinion makes it proper to state the grounds on which it is believed that the offices of the State are rightfully filled. See State vs. Lane, 4 Ired. 434.

The whole matter depends upon the question, Was the Convention of 1865 a rightful Convention for the purpose of reorganizing the State government, or was it an "unlawful assembly?"

1st. It is said that the President had no power to cause measures to be adopted for calling the Convention, and that his act was one of usurpation and in violation of the Constitution of the State.

It is provided by the Constitution of the State, Art. 4, Sec. 1, "No Convention of the people shall be called by the General Assembly, unless by the concurrence of two-thirds of all the members of each House."

The Convention was not called in pursuance of this provision; and it may be conceded, that if the Convention had been called prior to the revolt and surrender, it would have been an "unlawful assembly;" but the Convention was not called until after the State had revolted, and had been subjugated. This makes the difference.

The Convention was not in pursuance of the Constitution of the State, nor was it in violation of that instrument. It was neither constitutional nor unconstitutional, but extra constitutional; that is, it met at a time and under circumstances, not provided for by the Constitution. It was the creature of the emergency—the only mode by which it was possible to extricate the State from the condition of anarchy into which it had fallen, by the attempt to withdraw from the Union, which resulted in subjugation.

The frame of the government of the State still existed; there was the machinery, but no hands to work it; there were the offices but no officers qualified to discharge the duties. Those officers who held during good behavior had been required to renounce their allegiance to the government of the United States and to take an oath to support the government of the Confederate States. Such officers as had been elected or appointed, after the revolt, were required to take a like oath. It is provided by the Constitution of the United States, Article VI, clause 3, "The Senators and Representatives before mentioned, and the members of the several State Legislatures, and all Executive and Judicial officers, both of the United States and the several States, shall be bound by oath to support this Constitution." No one of the State officers was bound by an oath to support the Constitution of the United States, and consequently, no one of them was qualified to discharge the duties of their respective offices. There was no Governor, no members of the General Assembly, no Judges. Every officer in the State was politically dead, and the effect the same as if they had all died a natural death. How could the government of the United States recognize, as rightful officers of the State, men who were not bound by the oath required by the Constitution, but on the other hand were bound by an oath to support another government, and who had been elected or inducted into office at a time when the State was in open war with the United States?

Here, then, was a state of anarchy—no Convention could be called by the General Assembly, for there were no persons qualified to act as members of the General Assembly, and there was no way to have the State offices filled, whether Executive, Legislative or Judicial, except by a Convention of the people. In this condition of things, so far from its being a matter of complaint, it was fortunate that the President of the United States, either as President under the Constitution, or as Commander in Chief of the conquering army, under the law of nations, had power, without reference to the Constitution of the State, to appoint a Provisional Governor, and, through his instrumentality, so to provide, that the people of the State might, in a quiet and orderly manner, elect delegates to a Convention, and thereby give the wheels of the State Government a new start.

If we consider the State, after the revolt and surrender, in the condition of an independent nation, that had been conquered, (and this is the most favorable light in which the subject can be viewed, for thereby the question is relieved from the imputation of treason,) a well settled principle of the law of nations makes it the duty of the conquering nation to take care that the people conquered shall be provided with laws, or shall be allowed to provide themselves with laws, and thereby prevent a state of anarchy.

The act of the President, so far from being a usurpation, was a discharge of this duty in its mildest form; and the people of the State did accordingly avail themselves of the opportunity thus presented, and did elect delegates to the Convention; it follows, that their assembly was a rightful Convention of the people.

2d. It is said, in the second place, assuming that the Government of the United States had power to adopt the necessary measures to enable the people of the State in a quiet and orderly manner to elect delegates to a Convention, the act of the President excluding a portion of our best citizens from the right to vote for, and be elegible as, delegates, was in violation of our fundamental law, and such an act of despotism as to make the Convention an unlawful Assembly, and the whole proceeding void and of no force.

Here again the same fatal error underlies the whole train of reasoning. It is strange that heated feeling could in so short a time divest the mind of all impression of the stern fact, that after a bloody war, the State had surrendered without stipulating for terms (there being no terms except that the soldiers were allowed to go home unmolested) and lay prostrate with no further power of resistance, her people taking the amnesty oath, suing for pardon, and asking in the name of humanity, and the principles recognized by the law of nations, to be saved from the horrors of anarchy!

We were not in a condition to invoke the aid of "our fundamental laws"—the proceeding was avowedly extra-constitutional, and we could appeal only to the laws of nations. Whether the portion thus excluded constituted the best or the worst of our citizens, and whether the number excluded amounted to 100 or 500, does not affect the principle, and such extraneous circumstances should be put out of view.

We have then this state of facts: After a surrender without stipulating for terms, the United States Government undertakes, in discharging the duty imposed by the Law of Nations, to relieve our citizens from a state of anarchy; and to this end it seemed good to the Government of the United States to permit the people of the State to elect delegates to a Convention, but to exclude from the privilege of voting for, and being eligible as delegates, those citizens, who, having participated in the war, had not obtained pardon. The question is, was this exclusion a violation of the law of nations and an act of despotism?

We have seen that, according to the law of nations, the conquering nation may either impose such laws as to it seems fit, or may allow the citizens of the conquered nation the privilege of framing laws for itself. Can any principle be suggested, which forbids the conquering nation in adopting this latter and milder course to exclude from this privilege those citizens, whom it deems dangerous and not fit to be trusted? In other words, does the fact that a portion of the citizens are not considered fit to be trusted, impose upon the conquerer the alternative, either to adopt the harsher course of imposing such laws as he sees fit, or to wait until such time as he can be assurred that all of the citizens have become fit to be trusted, and in the meantime keep the conquered Country under military law or leave it in a state of anarchy? If this were so, it would be in the power of a handful of men, who choose to hold out in opposition after the nation is subjugated and the country in possession of the conquerer, to force him to impose such laws as he sees fit, or else to continue his military rule or leave the country in anarchy. If the conqueror has, by the law of nations, a right to impose such laws as he deems fit, why may he not confer the privileges of framing the laws upon such portion of the citizens as in his opinion are worthy of the trust? The greater includes the less, and upon what ground can those, whom he deems unworthy of the trust, complain that the privilege is not also conferred on them? A naked statement is sufficient to dispose of the question, and it is almost too plain to talk about, when we bear in mind that it must by judged of by the law of nations, and that we are not in a condition to restrict the will of the conqueror by invoking our fundamental law. Take the most recent application of the law of nations. Hanover is deprived of its King and of its government and laws, and annexed to Prussia, for such is the will of the conquerer; and this is done according to the law of nations. Can we look to that law for a principle be which to restrict the conqueror, if he sees fit to adopt the milder course, and put him under an obligation not to exclude any portion of our citizens from the privilege of participating in framing the laws?

It is true, should a conqueror, while professing to allow the citizens the privilege of framing laws for themselves, exclude the greater part of them and confine it to a few who may be deemed tools of his, it would detract from the magnanimity of the act, and be, in effect, the same as if he had imposed such laws as he saw fit. There is no ground to support a suggestion of the kind in this case, and even if there was, it could not affect the principle.

3. Fratricide is a more heinous crime than the killing of one with whom there is no tie of kindred. Civil war is more aggravating than a war with a foreign nation, and the conclusion in favor of the power of the United States, and the manner of its exercise, receives additional support by taking into view the fact that our State is not an independent nation, but is a member of the Union, and the attempt to withdraw, and the war consequent thereon, was a revolt, and subjected our citizens, who participated in it, to the charge of treason, unless the State had a right to secede. That question we must suppose to have been settled by the result of the war.—So the government of the United States, in discharging the duty imposed upon it by the law of nations, and the provision of the Constitution which requires it to guarantee to every State a republican form of government, was fully warranted in considering those individuals, who had not been pardoned, as still disaffected and not worthy to be trusted in the work of re-organising the State government. Ours is a complicated form of government; the citizen takes two oaths of allegiance, one to the government of the State, the other to the government of the United States, and both governments act directly upon the individual. So when the State attempted to withdraw, and revolted, a condition of things was presented which was not provided for in either Constitution, and seems not to have been contemplated by the framers. The citizens were obliged to violate their allegiance either to the one government or the other; those who made their election to adhere to the State violated their allegiance to the United States, and those who elected to adhere to the United States violated their allegiance to the State. Although this unforeseen condition of things, which forced upon us the necessity of violating our allegiance to the one government or the other, can not be deemed a justification of such of our citizens as elected to adhere to the State, (except upon the assumption that the State had a right to secede,) yet it is certainly a mitigation of the wrong and to this is to be ascribed, in a great measure, the proclamation of general amnesty, and the liberality with which pardon has been granted, to such as fell under the excepted cases. A portion of our citizens had not obtained pardons. Did this fact put the government of the United States to the alternative of waiting until such time as all of these persons should approve themselves fit persons for pardon, and, in the meantime, continue the military occupation of the State or leave it in a condition of anarchy, without legislative, judicial or executive officers, or else to allow those who, being unpardoned, were looked upon by the government of the United States as traitors, to participate in forming a Convention for the purpose of providing measures to fill the State offices?

It seems to us very clear that the exclusion of these persons was not a violation of the law of nations, or the clause of the Constitution above referred to, and that so far from the act of the President being one of usurpation and despotism, he could not consistently have done otherwise. These persons either had applied for pardons which were refused, for reasons of which he was the sole judge, or else had omitted to apply, because they were unwilling to take the oath of allegiance to the United States, or because they persisted in the opinion that they had committed no act which needed a pardon.

Suppose the President had caused these persons to be arrested, and they were confined on the day of election, and thus practically excluded from voting and acting as delegates to the Convention, would that fact have put it out of the power of the President to enable the people to hold a Convention? No one will so contend; and yet their exclusion by the proclamation was the same in effect, saving the omission of the harsher part, that is the arrest and confinement which occurred in only one instance. So to urge the exclusion of this handful of unpardoned traitors, as the government of the United States considered them, as a ground for holding the Convention to be an unlawful assembly, and as a consequence that the State has had, and still has, no Governor, members of the Legislature, Judges or other officers, who can rightfully fill their respective offices, is "to trifle with a grave subject."

4. Whether the act of the President was one which required the concurrence of Congress is a question into which we need not enter, for taking it to be so, Congress has, in many ways recognized and confirmed the action of the President in regard to the re-organization of the State Government by filling its offices. No other need be referred to than the joint resolution by which certain amendments to the Constitution of the U S. are proposed to the Legislature of the State of North Carolina, for adoption or rejection, thereby recognizing the Legislature as a lawful body, and, of course, recognizing in like manner the Convention under whose authority the Members of the Legislature were elected. Indeed, although there may be some diversity of opinion upon the question as to the power of the President without the concurrence of Congress to enable the people of the State to take measures by which to resume a Constitutional relation as one of the States of the Union, (about which we wish to intimate no opinion, because it is not involved in the matter under consideration,) there would seem to be no doubt as to the power of the Executive, either as President or as Commander of the army, to appoint a Provisional Governor, and through his instrumentality enable the people of the State to meet in Convention and take measures to fill the State offices. We have seen that, according to the law of nations, it is not only the right but the duty of the conquering nation, either to impose a Government on the conquered people, or to allow them to frame one for themselves, so as to prevent a condition of anarchy. When the President entered upon the discharge of this duty, it surely was not for the conquered people to question his powers, and the mere non interference of the Legislative branch of the Government was such an acquiescence as to amount to a sanction, on its part, of all acts, which, by the law of nations, it was the duty of the conquering nation either to do, or to allow to be done.

At all events it seems to us entirely clear that the officers of the State, who have been by this means, and in this manner, chosen and inducted into office, have rightful jurisdiction and power to discharge the duties of their respective offices, until some other provision shall be made for the Government of the people.

5. We do not enter upon the question in regard to the extent of the power of the Convention, for it is certain that, if rightfully convened, it had power to adopt all measures necessary and proper for filling the offices of the State, which is the only question now under consideration.

It is considered that the prisoner be remanded.

FERTILIZERS FOR SPRING CROPS.

WE beg to inform the trade and planters of North Carolina and Virginia, that we are prepared to furnish them with the most approved FERTILIZERS, on the most accommodating terms. We will have a stock of genuine PERUVIAN GUANO, purchased direct from the Agent of the Peruvian Government.
We have now in store, for immediate delivery, 325 tons BRADLEY'S SUPER PHOSPHATE OF LIME, which won for itself such an enviable reputation in the Cotton and Tobacco counties of North Carolina and Virginia, last season, proving itself equal, and in many important respects, superior to the Peruvian Guano. We give an analysis of it as ascertained by Dr. Hayes, one of the most eminent Chemists in the country:

Results of Annlyses Made of Bradley's Patent Super-Phosphate of Lime, as now sold by Wm. L. Bradley.

100 Parts Contain of

Moisture	5.30
Prepared animal matter, salts of Ammonia, fatty substances and Humus	38.50
Bone Phosphates of Lime, Magnesia and Iron (Soluble Phosphates of do. 16 6-10.)	36.80
Sulphate of Lime	16.50
Salts	20
Insoluble	2.60
	99.90

The animal matter afforded 4 2-10 parts of Ammonia when it was decomposed, and, as will be seen, nearly one-half of the Bone Phosphate is soluble.
After many analyses of your Super-Phosphate of Lime, made during the last few months, I have found your standard of quality full equal to that of any you have ever sold in former years; and I am satisfied that you include the correct principles in the manufacture. Respectfully,
A. A. HAYES, M. D., State Assayer.

ILLUSTRATED.—Our neighbor the Goldsboro News, has our late Ex. P. G. illustrated in its last issue. The "notes of the dying Swan" are very plaintive. We have heard of some one being "as lean as a cut-herring." That idea is well illustrated by the News.

RECORD.—Holden's record of the instigators of the rebellion is exceedingly barren. It has a capital defect, being destitute of Holden's own record. Every school boy in North Carolina knows, that no record of the instigators and abettors of the rebellion can be worth reading, so long as Holden's Record is admitted. We give "a little more grape" to-day.

THE CASE OF W. H. HUGHES.—We are indebted to our excellent friend, E. B. Freeman, Esq. Clerk of the Supreme Court, for a copy of the opinion of the Court in the case of W. H. Hughes of Granville.

DEATH OF MR. HAND.—We regret to learn that Ulysses Hand, Esq. Senator from the County of Rockingham, departed this life on the 6th inst. at his residence in that County. A writ of election has been issued, ordering an election to be held on the 24th inst. to supply the vacancy.

LAST OF THE CONFEDERACY.—There were sold in this city Saturday, at public auction, on account of the United States, a lot of hospital or field stretchers, the property of the late Confederacy. They were purchased by a commission merchant, at sixteen cents apiece, and will be converted, the cloth into grain bags and the wood into garden frames. It was a sad sight and suggested mournful reflections. It spoke of pale faces and bleeding forms; it spoke of suffering and anguish; it spoke of battle and carnage—of defeat and victory; it spoke of hunger and thirst and exhaustion; it spoke of blighted hopes and broken hearts—of vacant seats and mourning homes; it spoke of furled banners and shattered lances, and it spoke of a brave people ground beneath the heel of despotic power.—We turned from the scene under the influence of these sad memories.—Lynchburg Virginian.

Southern Relief.

A petition from the citizens of Louisville for an appropriation of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, for the relief of Southern suffering, will in a few days be laid before the Legislature. It expresses the unanimous sentiment of our people, and we hope that no smaller sum will be thought of seriously. Less than that would be unworthy of Kentucky. So small an appropriation as fifty thousand dollars, when wide-spread destitution exist in five or six States, which private charity is utterly unable to meet, would cause the cheeks of many Kentuckians to blush for our parsimonious policy.—Louisville Courier.

COLORED LAWYERS.—In Georgia the Superior Court of Chatham county has refused to admit to practice a colored man, who is at present a member of the bar in Maine, on the ground that "the laws of Georgia do not authorize or contemplate the admission of persons of color to the bar."

THE SENATE.—As far as the Senatorial elections have gone, including Connecticut, the Radicals have gained two, and if they can get in Nebraska and Colorado, they will be stronger in the Senate of the Fortieth Congress by five or six than they are in the Thirty-ninth.

PERUVIAN GUANO SUBSTITUTE!

BAUGH'S

RAW BONE SUPER-PHOSPHATE OF LIME.

Manufactured under the formula originated in 1854 and patented by

BAUGH & SONS,

SOLE PROPRIETORS, AT THE

Delaware River Chemical Works,

PHILADELPHIA, U. S. A.

This old established MANURE is manufactured from Bones that have not been burned or steamed, and it contains all their original organic matter. It is active in its operation, and is a fertilizer of great durability. It does not exhaust the soil like Peruvian Guano but on the contrary permanently improves it.
Previous to 1861 it was introduced into the Southern States to considerable extent, and again in 1865, where it has been used with remarkable success upon Cotton, Corn, Tobacco, and all Crops.

A trial will convince any planter of its merits.—Pamphlets containing well-known Southern evidence furnished upon application to New York or Philadelphia offices.
☞ Sold by Dealers in all the principal cities and towns throughout the United States and British Provinces.
